Roberson and Associates Opens New Office in Washington D.C. Area

Roberson and Associates, LLC, a consulting services firm specializing in communications technology, technology management, and spectrum-related topics, is pleased to announce the opening of a new Washington, D.C. office. This office opening is in response to the strong demand for Roberson's services in the Washington, D.C. area. The addition of the D.C. office brings to three the total number of offices currently utilized by Roberson. The others are the already-established Chicago and Schaumburg, Illinois offices.

"The addition of this Washington, D.C. office allows Roberson and Associates to directly address our government and commercial customer' needs. It also reflects the growth we are experiencing overall and, particularly in the government market. Washington is the hub of wireless-related policy and decision making activities, whether at the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), Department of Defense (DoD), Department of Commerce (DoC), or other government agencies. Each of these agencies impact the wireless communications landscape. With that in mind, having a presence in Washington, D.C. is critical to our continued growth, enabling us to better serve all of our customers," said Dennis Roberson, President and CEO of Roberson and Associates.
